WRITING

An Article

Blogging has a lot of advantages. What's the matter to write blogs? First, it's a form of communication, it's ~~it's~~ the existential need. Also it means you can meet new friends. Second, it's a way to be popular, and it obviously leads to better self-rating. Third, famous bloggers earn money by advertisement. The more you famous the more ^{as} people wants you to add it. Also, blogging is interesting: you're a freelancer hence no boss, no low salary, no boredom, no office, no early wake-ups, you work only for yourself.

You can amuse people or tell them something interesting and get paid for it. But, of course, it requires a lot of patience to become a popular blogger. You need to be hard-working.

But let's take a view from reader's place.

Why do we read blogs? It can be funny, it can expand our horizons of consciousness, it can just be as a timekiller. And if you're a blogger too, from others you can get knowledge, examples, experience.

So, I want to say, blogging is great and useful
